About College

Malineni Lakshmalah Women's Engineering College, (MLEW) has been established in 2008 to leverage 'education' as a means of 'empowerment' of women. The aim is to promote Technical Education among women to enhance and build-up a new generation of thinkers, innovators and planners in the realms of Science and Technology. It is approved by All India Council for Technical Education (AICTE), New Delhi and ISO 9001:2015 Certified Institution and with the recognition of Govt. of A.P, MLEW is affiliated to Jawaharlal Nehru Technological University (JNTU-K), Kakinada. Since the inception of the college, the college has been taking in students and growing in facilities year after year. Aesthetically landscaped, the sprawling campus of the college is home to the finest facilities and contemporary instructional infrastructure. Every student of MALINENI can be assured that this institution will provide them a very congenial academic ambience and the right type of inputs in order to mould them with the right technical competence as required by the industry. The teaching-learning process is carried out through the use of overhead and LCD projectors. The college boasts facilities such as an extensive computer center, library, advanced lab for communication skills, internet center, spacious seminar halls and Digital Classrooms.

Vision

To be a pioneer institute in engineering education, fostering academic excellence, and producing empowered women engineers, blended with ethics and values, to serve the society.

Mission

To achieve academic excellence through innovative teaching-learning practices

To inculcate self-discipline, ethics, and values amongst the learners

To bridge the gap between industry and academia through the industry-institute interface

To promote higher education, research and inculcate entrepreneurial attitude amongst the learners

About Department

Department of Science and Humanities provides the solid foundation for the students in reorienting them towards technical education, equipping them with knowledge in basic engineering streams and exposing them to a broad spectrum of subjects and disciplines like Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, Environmental Sciences and Management studies in addition to extensive training in Language and Communication Skills. The creative, critical, analytical and communicative faculties of the students are sharpened and fine-tuned.

The department is sufficiently supported and strengthened with well experienced members of faculty handling the subtleties making the students sensitive to the finer nuances of the concepts taught. All Laboratories are fully equipped to conduct the experiments as per the syllabus prescribed by the University. The language laboratories are provided with facilities for playing audio/video files, PA system and DLP projector along with interactive software for in-depth training and practice of the students. Unique additional value inputs are imparted in the areas of personality development, communication and soft skills.

Objective of the Programme

Statistics is a wide subject useful in almost all disciplines especially in Research studies. Each and every researcher should have some knowledge in Statistics and must use statistical tools in his or her research, one should know about the importance of statistical tools and how to use them in their research or survey. The quality assurance of the work must be dealt with: the statistical operations necessary to control and verify the analytical procedures as well as the resulting data making mistakes in analytical work is unavoidable. This is the reason why a multitude of different statistical tools is, required some of them simple, some complicated, and often very specific for certain purposes. In analytical work, the most important common operation is the comparison of data, or sets of data, to quantify accuracy (bias) and precision. Fortunately, with a few simple convenient statistical tools most of the information needed in regular laboratory work can be obtained: the "t-test, the "F-test", and regression analysis. Clearly, statistics are a tool, not an aim. Simple inspection of data, without statistical treatment, by an experienced and dedicated analyst may be just as useful as statistical figures on the desk of the disinterested. The value of statistics lies with organizing and simplifying data, to permit some objective estimate showing that an analysis is under control or that a change has occurred. Equally important is that the results of these statistical procedures are recorded and can be retrieved. The key is to sift through the overwhelming volume of data available to organizations and businesses and correctly interpret its implications. But to sort through all this information, you need the right statistical data analysis tools.
